Nasdaq Futures (NFX)

Pioneering the Maker-Taker Model for Benchmark Energy Contracts

Liquidity, order flow and tight markets are the trifecta in any positive trading environment. NFX, along with committed partners, is blazing new trails to bring it all together with the launch of a new Maker-Taker model designed to work across our Benchmark energy futures – specifically Brent, WTI, Gasoil, and Henry Hub Natural Gas Futures. The program kicks off with a focus on liquidity in Brent Crude Financial Futures (BFQ), and will expand to include the remaining three contracts over the course of 2019. While BFQ is the current focus, the Maker-Taker is currently effective for both the futures and options contracts on the aforementioned products.

NFX is Making Strides from a Solid Foundation

- NFX offers cash-settled futures and options on look-alike world benchmark products
- There is a diverse group of 20 FCMs connected
- Clearing through The Options Clearing Corporation (OCC) (AA+ rated)
